MORE PAGEANT CHARACTERS

People Who Are to Present the Play of St. Johnsbury Being Selected

The work of selecting characters to represent the historical persons connected with the history of the town are being rapidly chosen and the preparation for the great town play on Aug. 15, 16 and 17 is getting well under way. Some people are reticent thinking they must receive an invitation to take part in the program but they should not do so. Mr. Langdon, master of the pageant, will be very glad to accept any one desiring to take a part volunteer his services and any suggestions he may have.

The cast committee has been changed by the appointment of Miss Margaret Merrill in place of Miss Ide who could not serve.

In the first episode there are 11 rangers and 18 Indians training. Kenneth R. Cross will represent John Stark and R. A. Moore Stephen Nash, the first white men to pass up the Passumpsic valley.

In the second episode Lyndon Arnold will represent his great grandfather, Johnathan Arnold, the founder of the town. J. M. Perham will act the part of Surveyor General James Whitelaw, who laid out the town. Thomas Todd, the sleepy character for whom Sleeper's river was named will be represented by Walter Cleveland and Carl Sargent. Lindol French and Noel Noyes will make up the other members of the original surveying party.

Mrs. E. H. Ross will take the part of Mrs. Johnathan Arnold and J. B. Page will act the spirit of the wilderness in the introduction. In the third episode, The Pioneer Village, Judge D. E. Porter and Ralph Sulloway have been chosen leaders. H. W. Ellis will be the old post rider Bill Trescott.

A rehearsal of all the symbolic dances on the pageant grounds last Thursday evening showed the properties perfect and the audience will be able to hear everything.

In the Trade of the World Interlude Oscar E. Beck will be the leader and George W. Young will represent Uncle Sam.

Charles Goodell will be the leader in the fifth episode, The Invention of the Scale and A. F. Stone will represent Gov. Erastus Fairbanks in the Civil War episode. In the tenth episode, making of the Scale, G. P. Metcalf will be the leader.

Mrs. Langdon is designing the costumes and while each person will be held responsible for his costume the cost will be very small. The merchants are furnishing the material at wholesale prices to the costumes who will be prepared them for the actors. The merchants are also considering the closing of their stores on the afternoons of the pageant days.

MUSEUM NOTES

A Loom of Local Historical Interest Added to the Exhibit.

In view of the interest in colonial history aroused by the preparations for the Pageant, readers of the Caledonian may care to know more of recent accessions to the historical collection of the Museum.

Within the past year, several additions have been made to this department, all the articles being secured from the town of St. Johnsbury and all being valuable on account of their history as well as for their intrinsic worth.

One of the finest exhibits in the Colonial room is the loom, a gift of Mrs. E. M. Fuller of St. Johnsbury Center. The following description from Alice Morse Earle's "Home Life in Colonial Days" well describes the important place a loom held in the economy of the Colonial life.

"Any one who passed through a New England village on a week day a century ago, or rode up to the door of a Pennsylvania or Virginia house, would probably be greeted with a heavy thwack-thwack, from within doors, a regular sound which would readily be recognized by every one at that time as proceeding from weaving on a hand-loom. They were also found in every house of any considerable size, and in many also where they seemed to fill half the building. Many households had a loom room, usually in an ell part of the house; others used an attic or a shed-loft as a weaving room. Every farmer's daughter knew how to weave as well as to spin. Yet it was not recognized as wholly woman's work as was spinning, for there was a trade of hand-weaving for men, to which they were apprenticed and every town had professional weavers. They were a universally respected class and the ancestor of many of the wealthiest and most influential citizens today. The hand-loom used in the colonies, and occasionally still run in country towns today, is an historic machine, one of great antiquity and dignity. It is, perhaps, the most absolute bequest of past centuries which we have had, unchanged, in domestic use till the present time. You may see a loom (like the one in the Museum) in Giotto's famous fresco in the Campanile, painted in 1355; another, still the same, in Hogarth's "Idle Apprentice," painted just four hundred years later. Many tribes and nations have hand-loom resembling our own; but these are exactly like it. Hundreds of thousands of men and women of the generations of these seven centuries since Giotto's day have woven on just such looms as our grandparents had in their homes.

The loom in the Museum was made by Alpheus Goss about 1800. He was a relative of David Goss who set up his log house in Goss Hollow in 1781. Alpheus built a log house about the same time, on the road between the Center and Paddock Village. About 1800, he replaced this with a one-story frame house which was occupied by his son, Nathaniel Goss and is now the home of his granddaughter, Angelina Goss Fuller.

This loom is made of hard wood, though many of that period were fashioned of soft pine. Its excellent condition shows that though it was used until recent years, it was carefully handled and escaped being cast from house to house as were some looms. The warping bars, skarne, loom spools and swifts, also presented by Mrs. Fuller, were not so carefully made and have had much harder usage.

A rag carpet is in process of being woven on the loom. It was set up by Mrs. Helen Stockwell of Concord, who is one of the few persons in this vicinity still able to do this interesting form of handicraft.

Owing to favorable conditions, the flower tables are very interesting at present. During the past week were blossomed the cat-tail and staghorn sumac have been displayed, these being rarely noticed until the ripening of the fruit.

The new flowers shown on the flower tables during the past week are: following: yellow, climbing buckwheat, July 8; wild yellow lily, American wild mint, fruit of smooth sweet cicely, bitter dock, July 9; pigweed, red raspberry, shingle, staghorn sumac, mossy stonecrop, tear-thumb, Canada thistle, northern willow-herb, rough bedstraw, cat-tail, sweet elder, white lotus, maiden-hair fern, lady fern, long-beech fern, marsh St. Johnswort, bulb-bearing loosestrife, hedge fumitory, strawberry blight, fruit of arbor vitae or white cedar, and Canadian or showy tick-trefoil, July 10; Marsh skullcap, July 12; agrimony, July 13; cut-leaved water horehound, hemp nettle, fruit of water aven, fruit of tall red raspberry, early goldenrod, fruit of hop horebeam, Maryland figwort, lopseed, Christmas fern, hedge bindweed, one-sided wintergreen, Indian tobacco, fruit of partridge vine and barren strawberry, July 13; common plantain, July 15.

LETTER FROM MR. SEARLES

States His Position Regarding the Fifteen Miles Power Project.

July 15, 1912.

To the Editor of the Caledonian:

Since the announcement last week of my candidacy for town representative, I have been frequently interrogated as to what my position would be as to "The Fifteen Miles Falls Power Company," the corporation chartered by the general assembly during the session of 1910, for the manufacture and sale of electric current at or near that part of the Connecticut River known as the Fifteen Miles Falls, and in order that there may be no misunderstanding about my position with reference to this or any other matter, I desire to publicly state that I am a strong believer in the speedy development of our natural resources; that I believe The Fifteen Miles Falls Power Company, as chartered, is destined to greatly enhance the commercial and manufacturing possibilities of this state, and if the people of St. Johnsbury see fit to elect me as their representative, I hereby pledge to them my most earnest efforts to procure such legislation as will enable this Company to commence, carry on and complete this great undertaking at as early a time as is possible for one of its magnitude. If elected, I pledge myself to do all in my power to promote the planks of the republican state platform into laws, rather than to permit them to lie miserably rot and crumble away. And finally, if elected, I pledge myself as the servant of my constituents.

Believing that the people have a right to know how one who proposes himself for a public servant stands as to the above matters, so set forth that he may be confounded by them, I do not keep faith, I respectfully request that you allow this letter to be printed in full in the columns of your paper.

Thanking you, I am,

Yours truly,

J. ROLF SEARLES.

ANTI-FLY CAMPAIGN.

Remedies for Extermination of Fly Suggested by Committee.

The "Fly Campaign" is moving steadily forward and with good results. The "Home Economics" committee have distributed 1500 "Flycatchers" calling the attention of the people to the danger of flies in home. Nearly every store keeper, hotel and restaurant keeper, fruit dealer and milk man have been personally visited. Not one has refused to sign the pledge shown them, which calls for careful screening and fly fighting around their domains. This list will be completed and published next week.

In response to earnest inquiries regarding ways to destroy flies, we copy from reports sent out by "The American Civic Association."

"A cheap, and reliable fly poison, which is not dangerous to human life is bichromate of potash in solution. Dissolve one dram, (which may be bought at any drug store), in two ounces of water, add a little sugar and place about the house in shallow dishes."

"To clear the rooms of flies, use carbolic acid, heating a shovel, and pouring on it 20 drops of the poison. The vapor will kill the flies; or burn pyrethrum powder in the room. It stupefies the flies when they can be swept up and burned. The powder should be moistened and made into cones and after drying, each cone should be placed on a plate, and lighted at the top. It will burn slowly and the odor is disagreeable. For a Barn or Livery Stable."

The manure should be kept in a closed bin or pit. Every time the stalls are cleaned and the manure placed in this pit, sprinkle it with flies begin to breed in stored, they may be killed by thoroughly spraying it with kerosene oil or Paris Green and then pouring on enough water to wash the oil or Poison well in. The objection to using kerosene is that it ruins the manure for fertilizing purposes.

A solution of Iron Sulphate, (one pound to a gallon) applied at the rate of one gallon a day in a stable where one horse is kept will kill all the maggots. It costs about $1.00 per 100 lbs., so that the cost of keeping flies from breeding in a one horse stable is about one cent a day.

Pyroligenous acid, a by-product of distillation of turpentine, is valuable, because it is non-inflammable. All of these fly-killing remedies, can be found at any drug store, and purchased in small quantities.
